A unique and memorable evening

Rachel Mortimer Holdsworth

Head of Conference and
Catering Services at Trinity Hall

We are delighted to be welcoming guests for the inaugural Open Cambridge Dinner at Trinity Hall on Friday 9 September.

Open Cambridge provides an opportunity to discover, explore and celebrate the rich heritage of Cambridge and we are thrilled to be a part of this unique initiative.

As one of the oldest and most beautiful of the Colleges, Trinity Hall is steeped in the traditions of fine dining and hospitality associated with the Cambridge Colleges. We pride ourselves in offering an exceptional fine-dining experience amid our stunning historic dining rooms.

The evening begins with pre-prandial drinks on the River Terrace while watching the sun set over the River Cam. This is followed by a four-course dinner, a seasonal feast for the senses, served in our medieval dining hall. Soak up the atmosphere as you dine among the portraits in the hall, with its high-vaulted and oak beamed ceiling, stained glass windows and ornate architectural features.

Enjoy a special after-dinner speech from the esteemed Master of Trinity Hall, the Revd Dr Jeremy Morris, who will be talking about his experiences of the chapels of the Cambridge Colleges, from the smallest chapel at Trinity Hall to the largest at Kings.

We hope to welcome you to Trinity Hall as part of the Open Cambridge celebrations for what promises to be a unique and memorable evening.

Cambridge University Library at 600

2016 marks Cambridge University Library's 600th year as one of the world's greatest libraries, and to celebrate this momentous anniversary the Library is offering more opportunities than ever before to engage with their vast and important collections.

What started in 1416 as a few manuscripts locked in wooden chests is now a global institution housing eight million books and manuscripts, billions of words, and millions of images – all communicating thousands of years of human thought.

Today's Library building was designed by architect Sir Giles Gilbert Scott (who also designed the iconic red telephone box and Bankside Power Station, the home of the Tate Modern) and opened in 1934. The Library's most astounding feature, the 17-storey tower, stands at 157ft (48 meters) and offers the highest views across Cambridge. Members of the public will have a rare opportunity to walk through the Library and to peer into the impressive main Reading Room as part of the Bridge the Gap walk.

In celebration of its anniversary, the Library has also launched a free-to-download iPad app featuring six of the greatest treasures in its collection. Search the App Store for 'Words that Changed the World'.

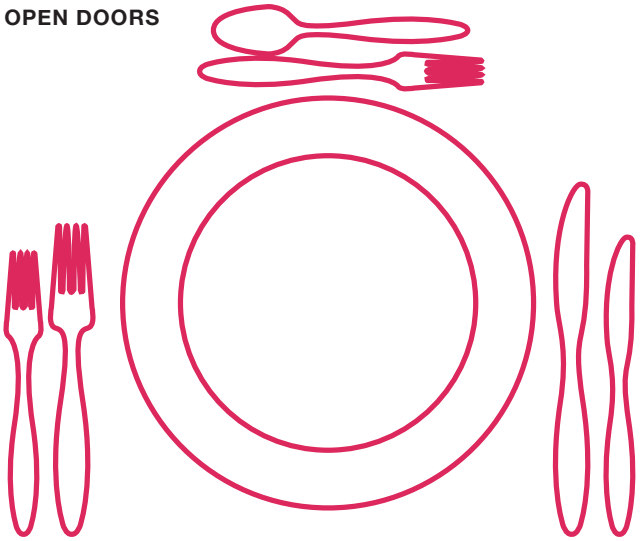

Further information and the Library's full programme of events can be found at www.lib.cam.ac.uk/600.

Rosie Sharkey
Heritage Education Officer
Great St Mary's Church

Do you know how Petty Cury got its name, or what you could buy from the smearmongers? Have you heard of the Cambridge book-fish, or the Great Market fire of 1849?

Market square has been the centre of Cambridge since the middle ages. Boats used to sail all the way up to Cambridge from the sea at King's Lynn before the fens were drained. The ships and barges brought fish, wine, salt and luxuries to the docks all along the river. Local people and villagers from all around Cambridge came to the market to trade, gossip and see justice done: the market was also the site of the jail and public whippings, the stocks and beheadings.

On Saturday 10 September, Great St Mary's Heritage, in partnership with Cambridge BID, hosts an exciting day of family activities, celebrating the history and mysteries of Cambridge Market. Events include mini historical market tours, time-travelling market traders – from medieval times to the swinging sixties – and a series of children's activities inside Great St Mary's Church.

A pop-up exhibition and memory stall by the Museum of Cambridge where they hope to collect local people's memories of Cambridge Market is also on display. And at 4pm, join us in Great St Mary's for a talk about the changing faces of the market throughout history and some of the more unusual ideas about how to transform it for the future.

This September, get your walking shoes on and take part in the annual Bridge the Gap charity walk around the magnificent Cambridge colleges and gardens

Cambridge is a vibrant city steeped in history and full of amazing spaces to discover. The Bridge the Gap walk explores these spaces, inviting you inside a selection of the Cambridge Colleges to enjoy their unparalleled beauty and charm.

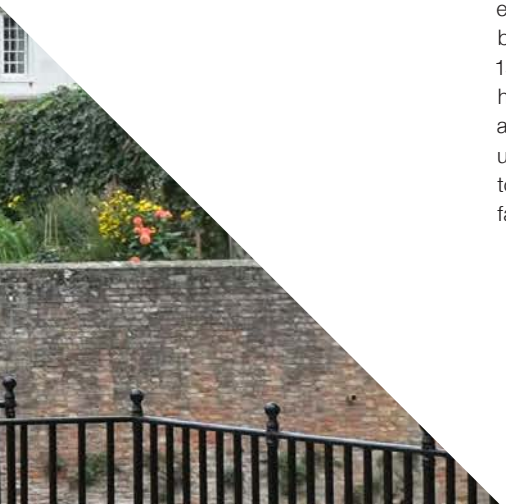

The aim of the walk is to raise valuable funds for the Arthur Rank Hospice and Romsey Mill, two charities directly benefiting the local community.

"The Bridge the Gap walk is a great illustration of a community event and one of the highlights of our events calendar. Having been a beneficiary since its introduction 15 years ago, more than £222,000 has been raised for the Hospice alone. These funds have enabled us to help thousands of patients to live well whilst supporting their families to live on.

"Each year the route is different and you can't help but be captivated by the wonder of our beautiful City and its world-renowned history. It's an event that should feature in everyone's diary, not just because it's supporting two great causes but because it's a super morning out."

Dr Lynn Morgan
Chief Executive,
Arthur Rank Hospice Charity

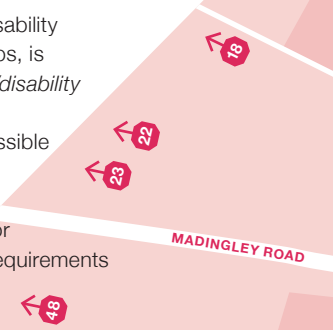

This year's route includes Emmanuel, King's, Clare, Selwyn, Peterhouse, Pembroke and Downing College, and is packed with plenty to see and take in. Highlights include the sneak-peak into the University Library, celebrating its 600th anniversary and the highly-regarded Ai Weiwei exhibition at Downing College.

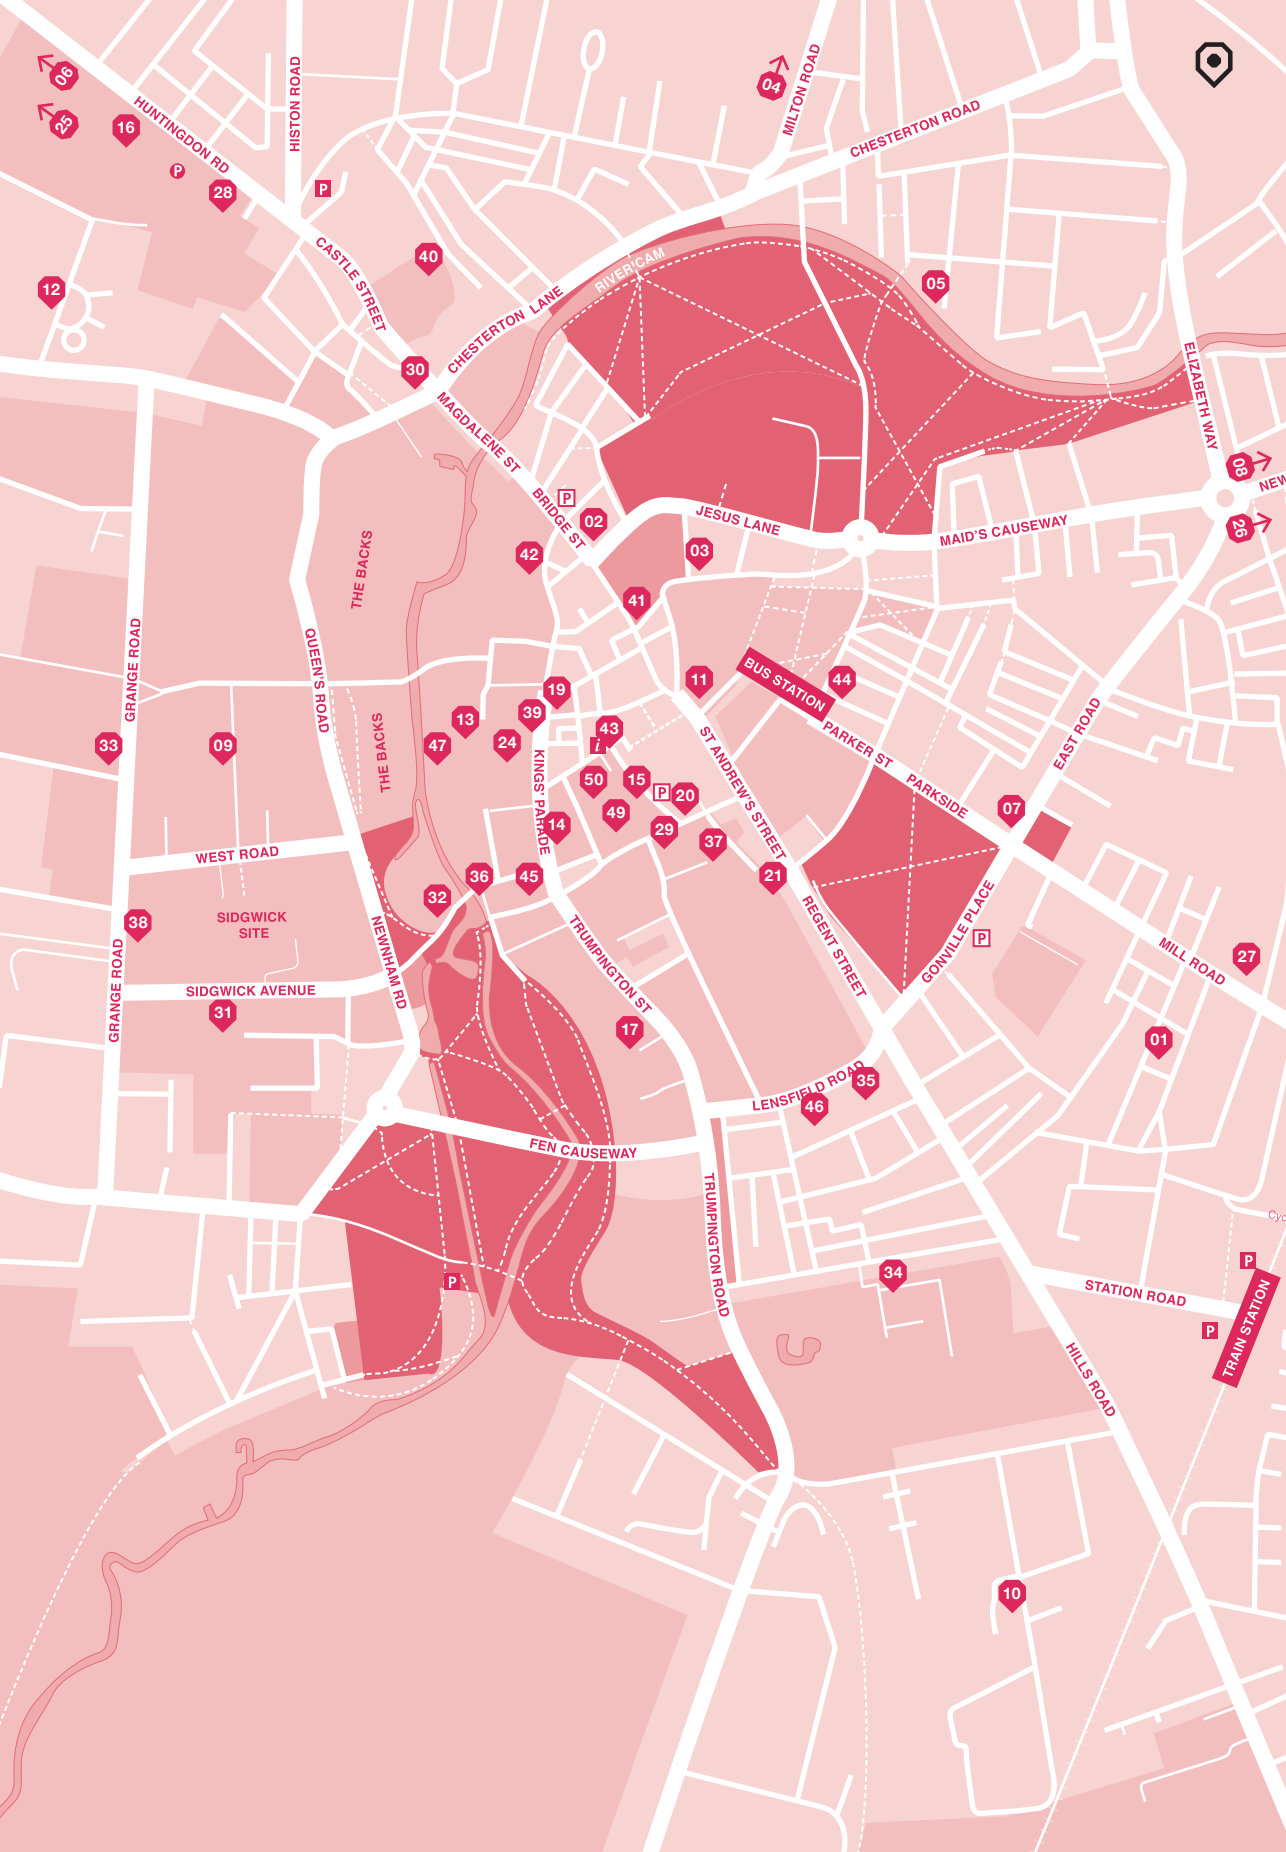

The Open Cambridge weekend takes place across dozens of locations, each with their own architectural style and level of accessibility. Everyone is welcome to the Festival and this includes children in push chairs, wheelchair users and people with additional access needs. Please see the summary of accessibility at our venues below. For more detailed information or to make additional arrangements for access requirements please call: 01223 766766 or email: opencambridge@admin.cam.ac.uk
